Wanted: Parents of Kids with Asperger's Syndrome

To Participate in a new Harvard Psychology Research Study

- A new study is seeking families of children who have been diagnosed with Asperger's Syndrome (AS) at least one year ago.
- We are investigating whether AS could be better predicted among infants and toddlers, by observing home videotapes of their social interactions as infants.
- Parents will be asked to complete two screening measures, and a medical history for their child (roughly 30 minutes' time) as well as provide us with 15-30 minutes of videotape of their child as an infant (aged 9-12 months)

  (The videotape will be returned within one week.)
- All information is confidential.
- All participation can be done via mail and telephone. No lab visits!
